

Unit 2: Knowing Your Rights in a Car Stop Teachers' Guide

LESSON 2: Describing People and Car Stop Situations

FOR MORE INFORMATION TO HELP YOU ANSWER QUESTIONS THAT MAY COME UP DURING THIS LESSON, REFER TO THE FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS SHEET "LEGAL INFORMATION ABOUT CAR STOPS" AT THE END OF THIS LESSON.

Time: 1 hour and 30 minutes

Content Objectives

- Students identify and describe people, objects and situations related to car stops.

Rights Literacy Objectives

- Students speak about their feelings while reflecting on situations in which the police has stopped them or stopped other people that they know.

Language Objectives

- Students practice speaking and writing vocabulary used in describing people, places and objects: colors, personality, emotions, and physical traits.

Materials Needed

- Student lesson handout
- Optional: additional images, postcards, etc. for students to describe

Content Objectives

- Students identify and describe people, objects and situations related to car stops.

Rights Literacy Objectives

- Students speak about their feelings while reflecting on situations in which the police has stopped them or stopped other people that they know.

Language Objectives

- Students practice speaking and writing vocabulary used in describing people, places and objects: colors, personality, emotions, and physical traits.

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).

KEY VOCABULARY:

Nouns	Verbs	Adjectives	Interrogatives
Woman/women	To feel	Easy/difficult	What color?
Man/men	To stop	Beautiful	How is it?
Police officer	To see	Fast/slow	How do you feel?
Sign	To speak	Happy/sad	Where?
Paper	To be	Scared/worried	When?
Personality	To walk	Upset	Who?
Eyes, hair	To drive	Responsible
Children	To have	Brave
Look	To ask	Calm/nervous
Car	To give	So-so

Before completing the activities below, the instructor should review the lesson vocabulary from the table above.

Lesson Activities:

PART A) Describing people and things:

The instructor goes over vocabulary words with the students. The instructor can use the vocabulary handout provided in the lesson to help students name the images below. The students say these words aloud repeating after the instructor. The instructor can point to items in the classroom or can bring in images to show students and can then ask students to describe the items or images as a whole group.

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).

Target vocabulary includes: colors, physical descriptions and personality traits. The instructor can also provide images, postcards, or other visuals and ask the students to describe them working in pairs.

Write down the name of what the image represents and practice saying these words aloud.

They are _____

This is a _____

This is a _____

PART B) Describing an image:

In pairs or small groups, the students describe the following image depicting a car stopped by the police by describing the colors, the people and actions involved, and the setting. The students respond to the prompts below. Suggestion for instructors: the colored image below can be enlarged for the students to see it clearly.

1. Describe the colors, people, and actions in this image: "I see..."
2. Describe your feelings looking at this image: "I feel..."

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).

END OF LESSON REFLECTIONS: The teacher asks students at the end of each lesson what they learned and how they felt doing these activities. The teacher may want to take notes based on what students share to help in preparing the lesson for the following week. Guiding questions for instructors to pose to students include the following:

- What new ideas/content did you learn?
- What new vocabulary did you learn?
- What new rights did you learn?
- What was difficult? What was easy?
- How did you feel?
- What would you change?
- How would you use this information?
- How does this content connect to human rights?
- What situations can you think of when you may want to assert your rights?

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).

FAQ: LEGAL INFORMATION ABOUT CAR STOPS

❖ Some tips on what to do if stopped by the police while driving

DO:

- Signal and pull over
- Remain inside the car
- Stay calm and be polite
- Keep your hands on the wheel, and tell the officer if you need to reach into the glove compartment for documents before doing so
- Carry a card with a lawyer's phone number or memorize the number. See information below about calling a lawyer if you are arrested.

DON'T:

- Lie or provide false information
- Obstruct the police or refuse to follow their direct orders to you

❖ When do I have to answer questions from the police or other law enforcement officers if I'm stopped while driving?

Generally, there is no duty to answer a police officer's or other law enforcement officer's questions. Anything you say to a police officer can be used against you.

In most states, including Massachusetts and Rhode Island, a driver must provide his or her name and address. In Rhode Island, a law enforcement officer may also demand a person's name and address any time (including if stopped on the street) where the officer has "reason to suspect" the person is committing, has committed, or will commit a crime. You do not have to answer any other questions.

NOTE ON QUESTIONS ABOUT IMMIGRATION STATUS: Noncitizens 18 years and older are required to carry their immigration documents (for example, their green cards or other proof of lawful status). If you have such documents, you should show them to the officer if asked. If you do not have lawful immigration status, you can say you want to remain silent.

This information is meant to provide useful basic information about the law and is not legal advice. It is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced.

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).

❖ Should I show my foreign documents if I don't have a U.S. driver's license or other U.S. identity document?

There is no easy answer to this question. Here are some ways to think about the positive and negative aspects of your options.

Option	Positives	Negatives
If you choose to show your foreign identity documents	Police officer will be able to verify your identity (that you are who you say you are) and check their system to see if there are any outstanding warrants or tickets. If there are no problems, the police officer may choose to just let you go. The police officer can also give you a ticket, or arrest you for driving without a license.	You are providing proof that you are a citizen of another country, so the government now has all the information necessary to try to deport you. In addition, the police officer can give you a ticket or arrest you for driving without a license.
If you choose to not show any documents	You are not providing proof that you are a citizen of another country (though the police officer may infer that if you don't have any documents it is because you do not have legal immigration status). Police officer will not be able to verify your identity. The police officer can also give you a ticket, or arrest you for driving without a license.	Police officer will not be able to verify your identity. The police officer can also give you a ticket, or arrest you for driving without a license.

You should never present false documents or documents not belonging to you.

This information is meant to provide useful basic information about the law and is not legal advice. It is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced.

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).

❖ When can the police search my car?

If a police officer asks to look inside your car, you have the right to say no. You do not have to consent to a search of your car. If the police believe your car contains evidence of a crime, however, they can search it even if you say no.

❖ When can the police impound (take) my car?

There are some situations in which the police are allowed to impound the car. This means that they take the car, and the owner usually has to pay a fine to get it back. For example, the police can impound the car if the car is or contains evidence of a crime. The police can also take the car when it presents a public safety risk. For example, if the car is pulled over on the side of the highway and the driver can no longer drive it. This may be because the driver was arrested for driving under the influence (drunk driving) or driving without a license.

❖ Can the police take and search my cell phone?

The Supreme Court decided in June 2014, in a case called Riley v. California, that the police generally must obtain a warrant before searching the contents of a cell phone seized from someone who has been arrested.

❖ What are my rights as the passenger?

If you are a passenger in a stopped car, you can ask if you are free to leave. You might also have to provide your name and address in some situations. You do not have to answer any other questions.

❖ Can I be arrested for driving violations?

Yes. Driving without a license is a crime in most states, including Massachusetts and Rhode Island. A driver can also be arrested for other criminal driving violations, including “reckless driving” (which can include excessive speeding), driving under the influence of alcohol or a controlled substance, and committing a “hit and run” (leaving the scene of an accident without identifying yourself).

This information is meant to provide useful basic information about the law and is not legal advice. It is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced.

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).

❖ What happens if I am arrested or detained?

If you are arrested for a crime, you have the right to remain silent and to ask for a lawyer immediately. If you can't pay for a lawyer, you have the right to a free one. Don't say anything or sign any documents without talking to a lawyer first.

Sometimes individuals are sent to immigration detention after having been arrested by the police. In immigration detention, you have the right to remain silent and you do not need to answer any questions about your country of birth or your immigration status. Don't sign any documents without consulting with a lawyer. Unlike in a criminal case, in an immigration case you do not get a free lawyer, but you or your family can hire a lawyer. You will be given an identification number called an "A number." Give this number to your family or your lawyer, as it will help them find you and follow your case. There is much more information about immigration detention and the deportation process that is not included here.

❖ Do I have the right to tape (videorecord) the police?

This depends on state law. For example, in Massachusetts, you have the right to tape (videorecord) police conduct: (1) in a public place; (2) openly (as opposed to doing so secretly); and (3) without interfering with the officer's conduct.

This information is meant to provide useful basic information about the law and is not legal advice. It is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced.

These lessons contain some basic information about U.S. law. This information is not legal advice and is not a replacement for legal advice from a trained attorney. All information is current as of the date it was produced (September 2014).